Peer Graded Assignment - Instructor Input

To get a grade for peer-graded assignments in this course, you must submit your assignment, then peer grade several other student submissions and then the course teaching staff will review your assignment and complete the grading of your assignment. It may take several days for the teaching staff to grade your assignment so that you receive full credit.

The instructor graded portion of the assignment is 3/10 points of the grade on the peer graded assignment (i.e. 30% of your grade). Since you must achieve 80% to complete the assignment within Coursera, you assignment will have a maximum of 70% and won't be marked "complete" until the teaching staff completes their grading.

The teaching staff will review the comments from your peers and review your submission before awarding a grade. If you have made a mistake in your submission, the teaching staff can send you a note and reset your assignment to allow for resubmission.

If the teaching staff detects a violation of the Coursera Honor code that says that you can only submit your own work, it may result in permanent failure of this course or deactivation of your Coursera account according to the rules of the Coursera honor code.

If you have questions or concerns about the grading of these assignments, please let us know in the discussion forums.